The past week has seen the Colony agog with excitement over the visit of the official head of another Colony, to wit, Macao, Senhor Artur Tamagnini de Souza Barbosa, who rules the destinies of that piece of the Portuguese Empire just south of us, must have had a splendid—and exacting—time, what with all the receptions he had to attend and all the things his compatriots in Hong Kong, as well as the British here, had to show him. Still, he certainly looked strong enough to cope with a round of festivities, and is indeed a fine specimen of a man. This is his second spell as Governor, friend Braga tells me, and it seems that he is holding the job down to the satisfaction of all who count—which must be saying a lot, for the task of administration in an Empire outpost is not, I imagine, any sinecure. Colonial officials, I have always thought, get less for their pains than other Civil Servants. For our own men who may be said to have succeeded there is, perhaps, a knighthood towards the end of a busy life spent in moving from one island or bit of foreign soil to another, together with plenty of kicks and a wonderfully large number of opportunities of becoming the "goat" for somebody else's mistakes. Here's hoping, however, that Senhor Barbosa has a most successful trusteeship of Macao and that we may see him amongst us from time to time. I hear that the party, which included Madame Barbosa (a charming lady with distinct literary and poetical gifts) and their daughter, went away very favourably impressed by our 'ickie island and fully appreciative of the warmth of the respective welcomes accorded by Portuguese, British and Chinese here. Viva!

Now we want a cat. Monday. That pup we have is a fine little fellow but he can't catch rats. I do not believe he has seen one yet, but the wife seems to think that he never will be able to snaffle 'em. So we must have a cat. We do not mind the breed, size—or very much—the colour, so long as it is or will be a dandy rat catcher. If one is left at the office I undertake to return the basket. Talking of those rats, we have one old rascal who spends his time between the bathroom and the kitchen. There is a gully between the two which provides him with a private entrance. That's the one we want to nab most of all, for if anyone is in the kitchen it's a safe bet that the rat is in the bathroom, which makes it rather awkward at times, the wife not liking rats.

There are many nice Tuesday ways, I suppose, of spending a Sunday. Last week-end I thought I would try an old-fashioned one. Left to my own devices, from time to time, the wife having taken herself off somewhere or other, I planned a nice quiet read followed by a snooze on the sofa.

which characterises, in effect, our back verandah, in which are collected, and heaved, all the masculine-looking effects about the house. Alas, the best laid plans and all the rest of it. Having settled myself, there came through the open window the strains of a pianoforte solo. Well strained, in fact. The player was a girl, because every now and then she'd branch into a vocal melody of her own making. I didn't mind the first one, though it was pretty bad, but unfortunately she went from one to another, from bad to worse in fact. Her tunes were classical ones, and in my mental agony I pictured what sort of a girl it was strumming that darn piano. She was the pampered daughter of parents with more money than sense, possessing not the slightest idea of music, time or rhythm. She has slavishly learned by heart a large number of classical airs and has got into the way of turning them on and off when called upon or when she feels like it. Some rogue of a music teacher has been taking money under false pretences from that poor girl's parents for years. Totally disgusted with the loss of a quiet afternoon, I took myself as far from the noise as possible, which was to the front verandah. The whole street in the vicinity was thick with petrol vapour. Right opposite our front door was a broken down motor bus, the driver of which was accelerating like fury in an effort to get the thing to go. A lovely din. Eventually he got tired and departed, presumably to fetch a mechanic from the garage, leaving the vehicle, one of the old fashioned ramshackle type, in charge of the conductor. This youth evidently did not like being left alone, so for company's sake he commenced to play tunes on the motor horn. This pastime he kept up until the driver's return. If I had been properly dressed I would have gone down and socked him. Anyhow, I trust this jolting comes to the notice of his employers, and that he is duly reprimanded.

My paper tells me this afternoon that last Saturday's affair at Lee Garden should net the M. C. L. a profit of at least $10,000. In a way, this is very good going, though promoters of such schemes have no right ever to feel satisfied with financial results. The wife and I went to the Fair between six and eight on Saturday evening. Things were then very quiet. A few youths were occupied at the coker-nut shies, and some little girls were enjoying donkey rides, the animals being in charge of burly sailor lads. The show lacked life. The ladies behind the stalls, no doubt by that hour tired of sitting in a confined space, were listless, poor dears, and did not seem to care whether anyone bought anything or not. This and other observations lead me to suppose that more money might have been collected if the affair had been more "peppy". Of course, in direct counter-action to anything suggestive of "pep", we have the Hong Kong Outlook, not to mention the Hong Kong Shrug; and if it had become known that efforts were to be made to send the show off with a swing, maybe many of

EXTRADITION LAW.

New Code For Chinese Fugitives.

GOVERNOR'S POWERS.

"Subject of China" And Other Terms Defined.

A Bill will be introduced at the meeting of the Hong Kong Legislative Council on October 13 to amend the Chinese Extradition Ordinance of 1889.

As the law stands at present, a requisition for the extradition of fugitive criminal who is a subject of China, is required to be made by "some officer of the Chinese Government," and a fugitive criminal cannot be surrendered unless a certain engagement is given by the "Chinese Government."

The "Chinese Government" is defined as including the Viceroy or other officer administering a Provincial Government. Doubt has arisen as to the applicability of this phrase to the present government of the province of Kwangtung, as it might be argued that a provincial government which does not admit the authority of the central government which was contemplated by the Ordinance is not a provincial government within the meaning of the Ordinance. It is therefore considered advisable to amend the Ordinance so as to remove the above doubt.

Accordingly, the bill substitutes the term "Chinese authority" for the term "Chinese Government" throughout. This term means "any person declared by the Governor to be or to represent the person or persons actually exercising authority in any province or other territory which, in the opinion of the Governor, forms or at any time has formed part of the Republic of China."

The persons who may be surrendered under the principal Ordinance are "any subject of China accused of an extradition crime committed within the jurisdiction of China or on board a Chinese ship on the high seas." The present constitutional condition of China makes it necessary to define the term "jurisdiction of China." This is done by paragraph (b) of clause 2 of the bill which defines the term in question as including the jurisdiction of any Chinese authority as defined above.

"SAN NAM HOI."

CONCLUDES ADVENTUROUS VOYAGE.

NEW CREW FROM CANTON?

The s.s. "San Nam Hoi," which lost her crew at Kongmoon owing to the action of the Chinese Seamen's Union, and which subsequently grounded twice on her way down to Hong Kong with a scratch crew, arrived here yesterday and is lying off Shamshuipo.

It is thought that a new crew may be sent down to the ship by arrangement with the Canton Seamen's Union and that the steamer will be on the run again by Monday.

WHY THE WAR.

Latest China Clash Explained.

BALANCE OF POWER IN NORTH.

Weaker Side Making Rapid Progress.

(By "The Mailman.")

In nearly every material respect Fengtien is superior to Shansi in the latest war in China, yet Shansi has made comparatively rapid progress since hostilities began.

Fengtien is really the name of one of the three provinces of Manchuria which Marshal Chang

SPORTS CARTOONS.

Stan Hill commences a series of Sporting Cartoons this week. The first appears in the Sports Page to-day.

Tso-lin rules absolutely. His organisation of government, based principally on his army, is known as the Ankuochun, of which he is Generalissimo.

Accordingly, the present struggle is between the Ankuochun and somebody else. That is why the term "Ankuochun" is sometimes used. Then "Mukden" also appears in the cables. Mukden, in the north-east corner of the map, is the capital of Manchuria and Chang Tso-lin's stronghold. The present seat of the Ankuochun Government is, of course, Peking, in the north-centre, Tientsin being considered as the port.

Traditional Enemies.
Opposed to the Ankuochun is the army under General Yen Hsi-shan, known as the "model governor" of Shansi province.

Yen Hsi-shan is the one province of Shansi. Chang Tso-lin holds Chihli and Shantung provinces in addition to his vast territory in Manchuria. The northern portion of Kwangsu province (not shown in the map) also belongs to the Fengtien Party.

The provinces of Honan and Shensi have also to be counted. These are under Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang who is best known as the "Christian general."

Chang Tso-lin and Feng Yu-hsiang have been traditional enemies if, for no other reason than that they are the leaders of the two most powerful bodies in North China.

Buffer State.

It will be readily seen that Shansi serves as a buffer state between Chihli and Honan-Shensi.

To facilitate an attack on the "Christian general," Fengtien needs the help of Shansi. A Shansi army could strike a mortal blow at the "Christian general's" flank in Honan, cutting off retreat into Shensi; if a Fengtien expedition entered Honan from Chihli at the same time.

For months the Fengtien leaders have cajoled and pleaded with Yen Hsi-shan to throw in his weight against the "Christian general."

WAR SPREADING.

The "Christian General" Mobilising.

SHANSI CONTINUES OFFENSIVE.

Thrust on New Sector Against Fengtien.

War in North China is spreading to larger areas.

In between the northern and southern sectors of the Chihli front, General Yen Hsi-shan of Shansi is to launch an offensive against the Peking-Hankow Railway. His plan is to follow a branch line of the Railway to a point north of Paoingfu and the junction with the main line (Shansi's objective on this new sector) is only 70 miles from Peking.

Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang (the "Christian general") is reported to be mobilising and marching westwards in the north of Honan to join the fray.

A Naval wireless message (given below) shows that the Northern army in Shantung (loyal to Fengtien) is retiring northwards along the railway from the Yangtsze to Tientsin. This is probably due to the threat of the "Christian general."

CHINESE GRATITUDE.

SOLDIERS RAID HOSPITAL AT SWATOW.

SAILORS TAKE CHARGE.

Swatow, Yesterday.
The humanitarian action of the English Presbyterian Mission in taking into their hospital Cantonese wounded soldiers, casualties in the fighting with the Communists who were formerly in occupation of Swatow, has resulted in trouble which necessitated the landing of a naval guard of Blue-jackets.

Yesterday, the Chinese military entered the Mission Hospital, tied up the Chinese assistant and threatened the Doctor with revolvers.

The excuse offered for this outrage was that they were not satisfied with the arrangements made for the wounded soldiers admitted to the hospital and they demanded that the hospital should be run according to their orders.

Naval Guard.
The Medical Officer in charge of the Hospital reported the matter to the Captain of the s.s. "Wild Swan," the British destroyer which was lying off the port, and a platoon of naval ratings was at once landed to guard the hospital compound and prevent any attempts at further interference.

The British Consul here has informed the Chinese authorities that the armed guard will be retained in occupation of the hospital until such time as a satisfactory assurance has been given on behalf of the Chinese military and civil officials that armed soldiery will not again enter the Hospital Compound and that no attempt will be made by the Chinese authorities to interfere with the usual hospital routine.

The situation is otherwise normal.—British Naval Wireless.

WHY MAGNESIA STOPS INDIGESTION.

The Best Form to Use.

While most everyone knows that magnesia is good for indigestion, comparatively few realize that its value is due to the fact that it neutralizes excess acid, which causes nine-tenths of all digestive troubles. To get best, quickest, and surest results, the magnesia must be combined with other neutralizing and healing agents in the special form known to chemists as "Blurred" Magnesia. Half a teaspoonful of "Blurred" Magnesia powder or two or three tablets taken in a little water immediately after eating or whenever pain is felt, will give instant relief, because it neutralizes the excess acid, stops food fermentation, heals and soothes the inflamed stomach lining, and restores painless, normal digestion. If you have any of the various forms of indigestion, such as gastritis, dyspepsia, acidity, heartburn, or flatulence, get a package of "Blurred" Magnesia from your chemist to-day and take as directed. You will be astonished at the instant relief obtained.

OUTSPOKEN JUSTICE.

BAR EXAMS. FULL OF DIRTY PRACTICES.

Mr. Justice George A. Malcolm of the Supreme Court proposed the extension of the law course from four to five years for working students and the conversion of the law college of the University of the Philippines into a strictly day school with instruction given by full-time, non-practising professors, in a speech delivered at the open session of the Junior Philippine Senate of the college of law, University of the Philippines.

The prevalent tendency among the young men and women to take up the study of the law was bitterly derided by the justice. He urged those present to get away from white-collar jobs and instead go to the fields and till the soil. "The Philippines will be unable to rise if the edifice rests on a shallow foundation of lean productiveness on which is superimposed a heavy governmental structure inhabited and surrounded by drones and parasites," Justice Malcolm declared.

He further exposed the intrigues, scandals, "dirty practices," and unscrupulous methods often employed in connection with the Philippine bar examinations. The Supreme Court Justice believes that bar examinations are unnecessary if such conditions continue.—"Manila Bulletin."

THEFT OF BUTTONS.

20,000 GROSS TAKEN FROM FACTORY.

Valentin Casas and Gregorio Santos, former employees at the Philippine Button Corporation, Manila, have been sentenced, each to 11 years, six months and 21 days imprisonment on a charge of theft involving between 20,000 and 21,000 gross of buttons worth P17,782.74, in a decision handed down by the third branch of the court of first instance of Manila.

"Considering all the proofs," the decision states, "it is clearly established that there were 20,267 gross of buttons of the value of P17,327.10 wrongfully taken from the establishment of the Philippine Button Corporation in the city of Manila" by the defendants. According to the decision, the accused Valentin Casas, during the absence of J. L. Headington, manager of the factory, was in charge of the office and as such received orders and carried on the ordinary business of the concern. And when orders were received, it also shows, the other accused, Gregorio Santos prepared the buttons for delivery.

It is understood the defendants have appealed to the Supreme Court.

IRISH SHIPBUILDING.

LAUNCH OF THE KING
EDGAR.

There are few developments of any importance in the shipyards and, while the dearth of new orders is beginning to cause some little anxiety in regard to the position at Messrs. Workman, Clark & Co., the general situation is distinctly good. While the past month was not spectacular in any sense—for there were no launches of completions of any importance—work on hand is progressing rapidly and unemployment is being steadily reduced.

The only launches during August were the Anglo-Saxon Petroleum Co.'s tanker "Brigida," from the North Yard of Messrs. Harland and Wolff, which is a shallow draft twin-screw vessel and sister-ship to the "Bertha," completed recently for the same owners; and six coal barges of 120 tons d.w. each built by Messrs. Workman Clark & Co. for Messrs. J. R. Noble. Three similar barges were launched for these owners by the Portadown Foundry, and three further barges, representing the completion of the order, will be launched and delivered during the present week by the same builders.

Messrs. Harland and Wolff launched the first of the nine King Line motorships on hand during last month—on the 15th ult.—when she was named the "King Edgar," and following this there will be considerable activity in launching until the end of the year, for subsequent vessels for the same order building in the South Yard are in a fairly advanced condition; while the Nelson Line motorships building in the East Yard are beginning to assume shape.

There has been a slight improvement in the ship-repairing situation and although the only large vessels on hand during the week ended September 1 have been the steamer "Inveravon" at the deep water wharf in the hands of Messrs. Harland and Wolff and the steamer "Bradhu" in the Hamilton Dock under repairs by Messrs. Workman, Clark & Co., there will be more work coming along in the immediate future in this direction. The Lamport and Holt liner "Vandyck," built in Belfast and delivered in 1923, was due in mail week for survey, overhaul and repairs by Messrs. Harland and Wolff, and will provide considerable employment, while further large work of a similar nature is anticipated in the near future.

THE POWER OF THE RAM.

Fifty-two years ago there occurred in the Irish Sea a naval disaster, fortunately unattended by loss of life, which demonstrated very forcibly that the ram, provided it could be used in an action between capital ships, was a weapon of great potentialities. At noon on September 1, 1875, the four iron-clads "Warrior," "Hector," "Vanguard" and "Iron Duke," of the Channel Fleet, were steaming at some seven knots through a thick fog in the order named, but with a distance of a mile or more between "Hector" and "Vanguard." Into this gap there blundered a sailing vessel, to avoid which "Vanguard" sheered out of line. "Iron Duke" had also sheered, though needlessly, and in regaining her position, steamed squarely into "Vanguard's" port quarter, striking her, by an unlucky chance, on the thwartship bulkhead between engine and boiler rooms, and so laying both compartments open to the sea. With fires extinguished and no steam for the pumps, it seemed obvious that the ship was beyond saving, and her captain concentrated all his attention on the transfer of his men to the "Iron Duke," which was only slightly damaged. Half an hour after this was accomplished the "Vanguard" went down by the stern. The subsequent court-martial, however, dealt severely with the captain and several officers for their too-ready assumption that nothing could be done to save the ship, or at least to get her into shallower water before she sank; though other collisions between capital ships in later years certainly tended to confirm the captain's opinion. The apparent proof of the efficacy of the ram, although based on conditions bearing little resemblance to those of a naval battle, had their effect on the retention of this primitive weapon, various more or less bizarre forms of which graced the bows of British heavy warships until well into the present century. Gradually came the realization that it was of little use against an antagonist capable of manoeuvring; while against a ship without steering way it was unnecessary. Increasing gunpower and longer fighting ranges strengthened the arguments in favour of its abolition, and although a ram bow was retained up to the time of the late war, being held to assist manoeuvring, its use was abandoned, and the ram-bow was abandoned.

The longer life of a ship nowadays as compared with bygone years is attributed by Professor Helander, of Kiel University, to be one of the primary factors for the depression of the German shipbuilding industry, writes a special correspondent to the "Daily Telegraph." This point is of particular interest to our own shipbuilders, for, if there is anything in it, the same view must, of course, apply to the position in this country and elsewhere.

In any case the point is an interesting one, regarding which, indeed, our shipbuilders might perhaps be persuaded to express their opinions. Other points commented on by Professor Helander are: (1) The higher rate of interest in force in Germany than in other countries, thus causing owners to abstain from ordering new tonnage, as they can obtain good ships of, say, twenty years of age on a much smaller investment; and (2) the fact that the losses of the mercantile marine by accidents have much decreased.

He further points out as a reason for the decrease in shipbuilding, that the capacity of ships has increased as regards deadweight, speed at sea, and speed of loading and discharging in port, shipbuilders thus being the "victims" of this increased capacity and greater efficiency. German shipyards are, on the whole, therefore, meeting with considerable difficulty, which is aggravated by the fact that the post-war capacity of the yards is greater than that of pre-war days.

It is pointed out, however, that an attempt has been made in Germany in the past year to counteract the influence of the unfavourable situation by concentration of shipyards, and by reorganisation of production. This, however, is regarded as a risky procedure for the shipbuilding trade of Germany as a whole.

TOURIST SHIP.

SAMARIA, CANCELS VOYAGE TO MANILA.

The tourist trade of the islands will suffer a set back this coming season as a result of the cancellation of the trip of the Samaria. A telegram was received by Walter E. Antrim, general manager of the Manila Hotel, from Raymond-Whitcomb, tour managers, cancelling all reservations.

The "Samaria" is one of the largest tourist boats which have been making stopovers at Manila. It brings from 400 to 450 tourists in one season. Reasons for the cancellation of the trip are not stated in the cable.

Fidel A. Reyes, director of commerce and industry, says the "Manila Times" expressed regret that the "Samaria" is not calling at Manila this season. He said that this will naturally be felt by local merchants who usually make a good haul during the tourist season. The hat manufacturers and embroidery dealers will be worse hit, he rated.

Around 3,000 tourists visit the islands each year on the average, Mr. Reyes said. He is especially disappointed by the cancellation of the "Samaria" trip because his bureau has figured on bigger tourist parties next season and has consequently made preparations for taking care of them.

STANDARD OIL.

SEGREGATED N.O.F. SHIPPING PLANNED.

Papers of incorporation for the Standard Shipping Co., which is to take the place of the present marine department of the Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), have been filed at Dover, Del., it is announced. Robert L. Hague, manager of the marine department, it is understood, is to be the head of the new subsidiary. The statement issued by the company announcing the plan for the organisation of the subsidiary company said in part:

"Similar plans have been under discussion in recent months looking to the transfer of other activities from departments to separate companies. These plans are purely administrative in character and involve no change in the capital structure policies or personnel of the parent company. The growth of the business in the past decade, with the accompanying expansion of the organisation, has made obvious certain opportunities for more efficient direction through a realignment of the duties and responsibilities of the operating executives. A survey of the business was begun two years ago with a view to making the changes now begun."

Two Chinese merchants, related to the proprietor of the Kwong
Yuen Fat Hong of Des Vaux Road,
West, have arrived in Hong Kong
after nearly a year spent in bandits' hands. At the time of their capture by bandits they were living in their native village in Kwangtung. Seventy people were carried off in the raid many of whom have been ransomed, others having perished and some being still in the hands of the bandits. The release of the two merchants in question was effected on payment of $6,000 ransom.

The hearing was continued yesterday afternoon of the case in which the Wing On Company charged their former employee,
F. H. Chan, with conspiring with
H. K. Yeung and with others unknown to damage their business by stealing a ship chandlery business.
Mr. Philip Cockburn, Chairman of the Wing On Directors, and also the General Manager of the Company, denied in evidence that he had ever authorised the latter advising the intention to raise the prices of supplies or the revised price list, nor did he see, until the case came to light, the replies of customers to these. He did not grant defendant's application to resign, nor that of the other empl yee concerned in the case. The case was adjourned to October 17.

The Wilkinson Process Rubber

a cable from South Africa ordering 4,050 square feet of reinforced an indication of the appreciable assistance to restriction and therefore to Malaya in general which this new industry is rapidly giving.

With a view to affording better public telephone service new call boxes have been installed at various places and additional ones added in various other convenient centres in the Colony. Two new call boxes have replaced the old one at the Star Ferry and three additional ones have been fitted at the Hong Kong Hotel. The latter are at the back of the lounge, near the rear entrance to Mac's Cafeteria.
Near the cloak room at Lane, Craw-ford's cafe will be found another public telephone. For the benefit of holders of Repulse Bay matsheds, a call box has been fitted on Beach road, whilst at the Tramway Company's waiting room at Causeway Bay, another can be found. Three little known call offices are those at the City Hall, Queen's Theatre, and Hong Kong Hotel Roof Garden.
These improvements are in line with the progressive policy of the Telephone Company, the management of which have decided on instituting call boxes wherever they will serve a useful purpose.

WATSON'S SWIVEL ACTION.

Watson, the Lancashire all-rounder, has a peculiar mannerism while taking his run up to the wicket before delivering the ball. The run is started in the normal way, but when about half-way through it, Watson, who is right-hand, medium-paced, suddenly turns full face to the left. Then the head is jerked round again, and the bowler goes on smoothly to the completion of the delivery. The impression conveyed by Watson's swivel turn is either that he has dropped the ball or had his attention momentarily distracted by some happening in the crowd.

WANTS A CHANGE.

BOBBY JONES PREFERS SLOW GOLF BALL.

DRIVING TOO FAR.

I have yet to meet the golfer who will admit that he drives too far. But Bobby Jones, since his return to America has been saying that the modern golf ball is too powerful.

At St. Andrews, when he won the championship, Bobby asked me if I had seen that drive of his at the sixteenth hole. "Gee," he said, "that was a whale of a tee shot." He was proud of it.

But Bobby says now that the modern ball goes too far. His best shots are long ones played up to the green, either with the long iron or a spoon, but he bemoans the fact that nowadays he seldom gets such a shot, owing to the great length of his drives.

A great "par buster" like Jones (in the American National Amateur Championship this week he went over par only once in 27 holes) may be excused for thinking that we drive too far nowadays; but I wish he had been playing in the recent Irish Open championship at Portmarnock. The long hole there took four full wooden club shots from even the best players, and in the strong wind even the short holes demanded strong measures.

Of course, there is a weak spot in Jones's game. That is the shot of about 160 yards, which one usually gets at the shortish holes. He simply cannot play it well. Had he done so, he would have won the American Open championship in June. At St. Andrews he was never on the green at the short eighth hole with his tee shot. Always he had to lay a long putt or a little chip dead to secure the three.

Jones, who never played with the old hard guttie ball, has taken some over to America with which to experiment. The position is intriguing. America gave us the rubber-core ball, known in 1902 as the "bounding Billy." Now their leading golfer wants to go back to a ball which may or may not give as much pleasure to strike as the rubber-core provides. There is no doubt that the rubber-core gave a great impetus to golf. Thousands took to the game for the mere pleasure of hitting the kindly rubber ball. Scores may have come down, but the important fact remains that players strike the ball more often in the club's cup.

St. Andrews has already refused to have anything to do with a less powerful ball, and I fancy that American golfers will act in the same way.—C. B. M. in "Evening News."

CINEMA FOR 3000.

A new super-cinema is being planned for the West End of Edinburgh. A site has been secured in the vicinity of Rutland Square, and plans are being prepared for a house on the largest and most elaborate scale. Its seating capacity, it is understood, will be approximately 3000. The new cinema will be built in the latest American style, the plans specifically following the conception of a certain super-movie theatre in the States. It is hoped that the new super-house will be completed and opened about the winter of next year.

SOME UMPIRES.

NINE BALLS IN AN OVER!

"NOT HOUT."

I have just been jotting down a few true recollections as to what the umpire can do when he tries. May every umpire forgive me, and forget these tales I am telling about him, if he is tempted to take his revenge during matches in which I figure! Good chap as he is, I am sure he will bear me no malice!

Did you ever here that fine amateur wicket-keeper, Mr. Cecil Headlam, of Rugby and Middlesex renown, tell how he was once doing duty in a village match where each batsman was stumped or caught by him behind the wicket down to the seventh, all thus going to his credit on the score sheet? The ninth man had scarcely got in—he had received but two balls—when he was palpably caught by the stumper, who appealed immediately.

"Not out!" exclaimed the irascible umpire, adding, "And O'll tell ye what, sir. O'll think O've g'en enough men out to-day for ye! So I shan't g'e ye any more, whatever happens!" One of the best stories I know connected with the umpire's vagaries is a tale told with much glee by George Gunn about a Nottinghamshire game in which he figured.

An opposing batsman had the awkward and dangerous habit of standing with his knee behind his bat when at the stumps. The rival bowler, managing to beat the bat three times consecutively, and hitting the player on the leg each time, appealed on every occasion. But the umpire would not agree, shook his head firmly, and finally added somewhat angrily, "Not hout."

So, when the over was finished, the puzzled bowler questioned him upon his decisions, and he replied, "It's because you are appealing too much that I gave him 'Not hout.'" When the next over by the same bowler was about to start, however, the umpire said to this player, "Now, I've told that chap to shift his leg if he doesn't want to find himself 'out' pretty soon!"

The first ball proved sufficient, for by it the bowler got the batsman out l.b.w. As the batsman passed the umpire he gazed reproachfully both at him and the bowler, saying, "That comes from shifting my leg, as you suggested!"

"So it did!" answered the umpire, gazing stolidly towards vacancy at the field beyond the pavilion.

Of batsmen's adventures with the umpire I could tell you dozens of good tales from my own repertory. How about this one? He was a good umpire, a man who had played for Yorkshire in bygone days, and whose name had been familiar to all sportsmen as one of the best. But on that afternoon of which I speak the very warm weather, or something else, must have unconsciously affected him severely, for he allowed the bowler to send down nine balls for the "over," and that without any of the first six being wides or no-balls!

Amazement.

All present stared in amazement at this hitherto unknown phenomenon, and we wondered if the over was going on for ever! However, at last the umpire woke up just as the ninth ball was snicked by the batsman, and caught by the stumper, who yelled loudly, "How's that?"

"Out!" said the umpire promptly. "But it was the ninth ball he has sent down," retorted the batsman, frowning.

"Then why didn't you object when it was the seventh?" replied the umpire. "I have said 'out' and out you must go!" Which he did, angrily. But I shall never forget how, in the pavilion afterwards, he exclaimed:

"Next time any bowler sends me down a ball too many—let alone three—I shall stand away from the wicket and let him bowl till the blinking umpire wakes up from his sleep!"—P. Holmes of Yorkshire in "Daily Express."

A WEEK'S PAPERS IN ONE.

An important change has come over the Chinese situation during the past week. In the North of the country a new war has broken out, and for the time being Yangtze happenings are eclipsed. Chang Tso-lin has become opposed to Yen Hsi-san, the warlord of Shansi, and hostilities have started, first blood going to the Shansi-ites, who have defeated the Fengtien troops at Kalgan. This looks like developing into a long-drawn-out affair, though whether the troops will fight throughout the severe winter of the northlands remains to be seen. Full details are given in this week's issue of the "Overland Mail."

Swatow has again changed hands, the Reds having departed before the Cantonese troops, and again the city is under the control of General Li Chai-sum's forces.

Canton itself has undergone a startling change, so far as its politics are concerned. It has declared provincial autonomy with, of course, Kwangsi as an ally.

Locally, the event of the week has been the giant fete held at Lee Garden in aid of the funds of the Ministering Children's League. The people of the Colony responded gladly to the call, and it is expected that at least $10,000 profit will be shown. All local events, social and sporting, are fully described in this week's "Overland."

MOTURING SECTION

COMING EVENTS.

BRITISH MOTOR NOTES.

The Prince of Wales has consented to act as president of the World Motor Transport Congress, which will be held in London this autumn, adding yet another important event to an already crowded season. This year's series of exhibitions will be particularly complete. First comes the Engineering and Shipbuilding Exhibition, an important section of which will be devoted to marine motors and motor boats. This will be followed by the Motor Show, which will be open from October 13 to October 22. Next in order is the Cycle and Motor Cycle Exhibition, which will occupy Olympia from October 31 to November 5. Finally we have the Commercial Motor Transport Exhibition from November 17 to November 26. The World Motor Transport Congress is timed to take place just before the last-named event. The meetings will be held on November 14, 15 and 16, and the subjects to be discussed are of the highest importance. They include discussions on road construction and improvement in relation to the development of motor transport; motor transport as an instrument of development of world resources; the necessity for co-operation between road and rail transport; possible improvements in facilities for international travel by road; fuels and fuel supplies; and the development of motor vehicles suitable for service on bad roads and for cross-country use. The congress, thought not organised by the Government, may be regarded as at least a semi-official event, since it is already definitely known that the Imperial Government and the Governments of the overseas Dominions will be well represented at it, and there is every reason to anticipate that foreign countries will prove equally interested. It seems more than probable that the last of the six subjects mentioned will bring together experts from all parts of the world on the subject of military motor transport. Though the congress, being international, cannot devote itself to the discussion of British interests alone, it seems quite probable that it will mark considerable progress towards the unification of military motor transport throughout the Empire. The general adoption of some subsidy scheme for the encouragement of suitable types of military vehicles, having also commercial value, has been consistently advocated by "Motor Transport" since about the year 1912, and the pioneer work that this journal has done now appears to be bearing fruit, since there is serious talk of the adoption of some subsidy scheme in Australia, and if this step is taken, other parts of the Empire will no doubt follow suit.

Visitors from overseas to the exhibitions or congress may note, with advantage, that the Automobile Association has established an office at 11, The Avenue, Southampton, where motorists landing at that port can obtain all the information they require. As regards registration, the Automobile Association announces that motorists may now proceed to the nearest registration authority before complying with the requirements of the British law. Thus, those landing at Folkestone or Dover can drive on to Canterbury or Maidstone before going through the necessary formalities; Southampton has its own registration office; and those landing at Newhaven will find an office in Lewes.

Overseas Achievements. British motor cycle successes have been equally significant outside Great Britain. Thus, for the fourth year in succession, the B.S.A. team of motor cycles won the team prize in the Paris to Nice trial; only three of these machines were entered, and all three went through without losing a mark, though the course had been stiffened to such an extent that only about two-thirds of the competitors finished at all. Of the foreign machines in this trial, "The Motor Cycle" points out that the most successful were those fitted with British engines. These were of the Villiers two-stroke type; four of them being tiny little units of no more than 172 c.c. capacity—nevertheless, all won gold medals and cups.

In the six days' reliability trial of New South Wales, there were 35 starters and, at the end of the 1,000 miles' run, only four competitors completed the course without loss of marks, and of these no less than three were riding Triumph motor cycles. One of these riders was also a member of the successful team on the last three occasions, in all cases riding the same 1924 model of Triumph.

The ideal of travelling round the world by motor cycle seems to be becoming very popular. Quite a number of these tours are now in progress, amongst the earliest starters being two riders of B.S.A. machines. Several other adventurers are also on the road and have chosen varying routes.

AUTO SALES.

NEW CHINESE COMPANY IN MANILA.

A number of prominent Chinese business men in Manila on September 2 filed papers for the incorporation of a P500,000 firm to be known as the Philippine Automotive Corporation to import and sell automobiles and accessories.

Among those interested in the new firm are Alfonso Z. Sy Cip, Gabriel La O, Jose G. Barretto, Sly Chong-fu, Sly Chong-keng, Gan Han-uy and Chong Su-see. These men already have contributed P100,000 to the capital stock of the corporation.

PARIS BUSES AND CARS.

NEW FARE SYSTEM INAUGURATED.

A new ticket system and fare-registering machines are to be used on all Paris omnibuses and street cars.

Tickets are to be sold in strips of twenty, each ticket to be good for a section of the ride. They are to be placed in a slot of the machine and the turn of a handle will stamp on each ticket the route, trip number, the bus number and the section paid for.

THIS WEEK'S HINTS.

When you drain the radiator of the car and leave it for any length of time, it is a good idea to hang a reminder, in the shape of a label, on the steering wheel to the effect that the radiator needs filling before driving.

Cultivate the habit of removing the ignition key from your car every time you leave the car. Some day you might stall the engine when parking or garaging, and leave the switch on. The reward for this is a flat battery in the morning.

When driving, never attempt to pass another car when approaching a corner or the summit of a hill, unless the road is exceptionally wide. This practice is equivalent to the driver being blindfolded, and is apt to result in a nasty smash.

To correct a skid, always humour it; that is, steer immediately in the direction the back wheels have taken. By turning in the other direction the skid becomes worse, and is likely to cause the car to get out of control.

U.S. ON WHEELS.

THE "GASOLINE HOBBS" ALL THE RAGE.

Forty million Americans will take the road this year in their cars to spend their annual vacations, says Mr. Roper Lindsay. Touring North, South, East and West, and estimating an average of our passengers to every car, approximately ten million cars will make journeys of 200 to 5,000 miles.

The national parks and reservations in Canada, and the Northern and North-West States, will attract by far the greatest number of tourists. Last year 1,400 Americans went to Europe, taking their own cars with them, expressly for the purpose of touring on the Continent and the British Isles. This year the number is expected to reach 2,500 and the transatlantic steamship lines are making special preparations to cater for the "automobile tourist." For the transportation of a medium-size American car from New York to Southampton the average charge is $40.

Automobile Camps.

The huge army of domestic tourists will have to be content with from ten to fourteen days on the open road. The great majority of these "gasoline tourists," as they are called, will sleep in hotels or automobile camps, but a large number will carry camping outfits, which are complete, sometimes even to a collapsible canoe and fishing tackle. There are more than 2,000 automobile camps scattered all over the United States, providing stopping places for the tourist. The usual type of automobile camp comprises merely a chain of single-story log huts of various sizes, which may be rented by the day or by the week, and is situated near one of the favourite beauty spots. The more elaborate camps have tennis courts, swimming pools, golf courses and dance floors are grouped with the dining, breakfast and reading rooms in the main building that stands in the centre of a little township of log huts.

At night in the artificially romantic atmosphere of a camp-fire, the drug-store clerk from New York will "swap" yarns with the garage mechanic from San Francisco, or feign on a deal flooring to music broadcast from a 500-mile distant radio station. With morning a heterogeneous collection of cars will hunch down the camp track on the last leg of their journey, their windshields "fairly plastered" with "stickers"—the "suitcase label" of the automobile tourist. "Black Eagle Rock Camp," "Blue Lake Reservation," or "Come Again-Claws Red Leap Falls," and other equally ridiculous titles.

The "Sticker."

The steamship label collection never reached the extreme, even in America, to which the windshield "sticker" hobby has attained among automobile tourists. As a potent advertising medium the craze must seriously rival rural sign-boards. Originally the "sticker" was intended to facilitate the passage of a tourist from one State to another. This was necessary, since every State imposes its own automobile tax, as distinct from the Federal, or national tax; and licences for every car are issued annually, valid only in that State where the car owner resides. The tourist, however, is a very welcome visitor, since he usually comes prepared to spend freely. Hence a permit, or "sticker," was pasted on his windshield allowing him full use of the State highways for thirty days. The "sticker" bore the name of the State in prominent type, accompanied, usually, by a multi-coloured pictorial representation of one of the principal beauty spots. The idea soon spread, and was adopted as an advertising medium by tourist camps, lake and mountain resorts, hotels, and even petrol-filling stations and garages, oil companies and car-manufacturers. These labels are plastered all over the windshield, side-windows and rear windows of the car. To the ostentatious "gasoline hobo" these "stickers" are acceptable as a ready means of displaying to the world a scrap-book-like record of his wanderings; and towards this end he is but too willing to risk his own life, and others, by sacrificing the transparency of his windshield.

EVOLUTION.

LECTURE AT ST. PATRICK'S CLUB.

MAN AND THE APE.

Thursday evening the Rev. Byrnes, Ph.D., S.J., lectured at St. Patrick's Club, Garden Road, before a large audience on the subject: "Man and the Ape." The lecture was illustrated with interesting slides. The lecturer, a distinguished biologist, said: "For enlightened Darwinism is dead." This in his presidential address to the British Association, Sir Arthur Keith, speaking of Darwin's position, said: "The position of Darwinism is becoming 'impregnable.' An ordinary layman who may like to follow, with interest, the scientific conclusions of the day, must be misled by such opposite statements made by distinguished scientists."

The earth is covered with a variety of things; there are minerals, plants, and insects and animals. Most people take them for granted; were they not always there? "No" is the very definite answer of science, for there was no time when the earth was so hot that these living things could not have existed upon it. It cooled down first, and it cooled a long time before it became cool enough to sustain life. As Sir Oliver Lodge puts it, "before or after, in manner or in amount, life appeared—life appeared as a spontaneous entity with apparently potentiality of slow and indevelopment."

From The Dead.
If, as asked how life appeared, would answer, "by a creation of God," and would, most of us say that each individual of living thing was originally created by God, and endowed with the power of propagating his kind. They might be said to have been "spontaneously generated," but that, in certain cases, living matter spontaneously appeared from dead matter. Very wonderful changes take place in Nature, and there are so many different kinds of living things so like one another in bodily structure that we may ask it is possible that one kind of plant or one kind of animal should, in the course of many years, gradually become another kind. Long before Darwin, the minds had examined this. A gradual change had gone on, in the course of centuries, so that one species or kind of living thing was transformed into another. Thus the earliest remains of birds, found in the earth, were more reptile-like in appearance than the birds of to-day. It is possible that the bird of to-day, the reptile? We know that climate, food, cross-fertilization, and various other factors, sometimes of quite a marked character, could not all have worked, working naturally in the course of long ages, effect even more striking changes?

From Other Species.
In 1801 a scientist, named Lamarck, replied: "Yes, it is so. All species, including man, are descended from other species." He believed the modifications to have been mainly caused by (a) physical conditions of life, (b) crossing of existing forms, (c) use or disuse of organs. Lamarck held that powers, but it was not until 1859 that Darwin published his book, "The Origin of Species by Means of Natural Selection or the Preservation of Favoured Races in the Struggle of Life." We give Darwin's own title: it is important. It tells us exactly what Darwin's personal contribution to the question meant. Darwin accepted Transformism, which was an old theory, but he offered the Scientific world a new explanation of how it might take place. His book was written to unfold this theme.

Briefly, it may be stated thus: living creatures have a general resemblance to their parents, but they also differ from them. Thus the young hare may be swifter of foot than the parent hares, in which case he would be better equipped for the battle of life, as more readily escaping from danger.

Natural Selection.
Variations of an advantageous kind might be passed on and so, in time, tend to form a new species. "Can we doubt that individuals having any advantage, however slight, over others, would have the best chance of surviving, and of procreating their kind?" asks Darwin. Now it is just here that the difficulty arises. It is possible not only to doubt, but to disbelieve the theory of "Natural Selection," as explaining a continuous series of variations worked out to produce new species of a higher type. Hence to-day, as in Darwin's lifetime, we meet with Scientists who are completely opposed in their views of his theories, as the quotations from Driesch and Keith show. We might cite Lankaster as a strong supporter of the "Survival of the Fittest" and, on the other hand, the opinion of the Russian Botanist, Korschinsky, that Natural Selection "is in no way favourable to the origin of new forms. It is a factor inimical to evolution."

Facts of Evolution.
If one takes up some of the cheap manuals on Evolution, and they are constantly appearing, he will read of the "Fact of Evolution" and he will be assured that "no one can doubt it, in these days." We must regret such statements. They are untrue, and a departure from truth must injure not serve the cause of genuine Science. Many talk glibly of "Darwinism," but the number who have read Darwin's own works is comparatively small. Darwin was very modest in his conclusions, and did not label as "facts" statements which were only theories. There is a very big difference. Recently there was much damage done by a typhoon. The "facts" are the ruined houses, the uprooted trees, the roads covered with rock fragments, &c. If I did not know of the typhoon, I might offer various explanations of how this happened: they might be all quite sufficient to account for the damage, and so be very plausible, but they are only theories and they happen to be false.

Now let us apply this principle to Evolution, and for practical purposes let us take the supposed Evolution of Man from the ape, to which Sir A. Keith devotes some attention in his recent Presidential Address.

Reveal Us As Monkeys.
Many scientists hold that if we were sufficiently curious about our ancestors investigation would reveal them to us as monkeys in the forest. Now why do they think this? No one can deny that there is a considerable resemblance, in bodily structure, between man and ape; scientists can point out further similarities as in the nature and reactions of the blood. Further, archaeological researches have unearthed various specimens of human workmanship and human remains in the earth. The tools used by these ancient men were of a primitive and rough kind, pointing to a rudimentary civilisation. Some skulls and other skeletal parts found indicated, in the opinion of many scientists, a type of man much closer to the ape than the man of to-day.

Much work was spent over these relics, and it was hoped to complete the collection some day, and to show the gradual shaping of the ape into the man. The collection is still incomplete, and the "link" between man and monkey is as missing a link as it was in the days of Darwin. We read at times of the "flood" of evidence. The "flood" consists of a few skulls, some pieces of bones, and some skeletons grouped around them. It was remarked that they could all fit into the back of a small Ford delivery van.

Human Remains?
In his address Sir Arthur Keith mentions the pieces with which any one who has read the literature of evolution must be familiar: The top of skull, teeth and thigh-bone found in Java. Out of these has been constructed a man. Are we really justified in forming any conclusion? The first difficulty is to prove that they belong to the same individual, for they were found apart. The second difficulty is to prove that they were human remains. Some say the skull is human, others it is of an ape, others intermediate between the two. Then comes the "Pithecanthropus" skull. This skull was in a very imperfect condition, the efforts of reconstruction were unhappy. The jaw found with it was pronounced by Professor Osborn to be that of a chimpanzee.

Only a Theory.
It is not to be wondered then that Sir Arthur Keith writes "there are still great blanks in the geological record of man's evolution." He hopes, as do the many scientists who share his views, that these blanks will one day be filled in. What is the man in the street to think of it all? He ought first to realise that Evolution, no matter how many learned supporters it may claim, is only a theory. It is a theory which has stimulated much scientific work and thought, and so far it is good.

But it does not explain the beginning of life and it could not do so. As Sir Oliver Lodge says: "Of ultimate origins science knows nothing. Its methods enable it to infer with more or less accuracy what will be from what is; and with somewhat greater confidence to gather information about the past from the present, inferring from what was, at any given epoch, something of what went on before it."

There is a kind of idea that Evolution and Religion are opposed. This is not so, if the Evolution meant is the Evolution of which Science is competent to speak. But if the so-called Evolution attempts to explain the origin of the soul of man, it has strayed away from the paths of Science, for, of such ultimate origins, as Lodge truly says, Science knows nothing. It has taken a false turn, and being false must run counter to religious truth.

Back To The Ape.

If anyone wishes to believe that his body must trace its ancestry back to the ape, we do not know of any religious principle which would take the axe to destroy his genealogical tree; on the other hand, with mind perfectly to value duly any evidence that may be offered, we have so far failed to meet with any of a convincing nature, and so we prefer to abide by the verdict "not proven," sharing the view of a writer to the literary supplement of the "Times" who said: "No one possessed of a sense of humour can contemplate without amusement the battle of evolution, encircled (dialectically speaking) with the gore of innumerable combatants, encircled with the corpse of the (dialectically) slain, and resounding with the cries of the living as they hustle together in the fray. Here are zoologists, embryologists, botanists, morphologists, biometrists, anthropologists, sociologists, persons with banners and without; Darwinians and neo-Darwinians, Lamarckians and neo-Lamarckians, Galtonians, Haeckelians, Weismannians, de Vriesians, Mendelians, Hertzianians, and many more whom it would be tedious to enumerate."

Never was seen such a melee! The humour of it is that they all claim to represent "science," the serene, the majestic, the absolutely sure, the undivided and immutable, the one and only vice-gerent of Truth, her other self. Yet it would puzzle them to point to a theological battlefield exhibiting more uncertainty, obscurity, dissension, assumption and fallacy than their own. For the plain truth is that, though some agree in this and that, there is not a single point in which all agree; battling for evolution, they have torn it to pieces; nothing is left, nothing at all on their showing, saving a few fragments strewn about the arena.

was accomplished by the use of a special nickel-steel boiler plate; the first of its kind used in boiler construction on the American continent. The Baltimore Centenary Exhibition, is expected to be the most complete outdoor and indoor exhibition of transportation ever collected, including the earliest and latest types of locomotive from the North American as well as the European Continents and the British Isles.

MOTOR SMASH.

THREE KILLED AND NINE INJURED.

ATTACK BY VILLAGERS.

Three men were killed and nine others were injured when an automobile, owned and driven by J. L. Johnson, of Manila, crashed into a corner tienda at Bacoor, Cavite, about 8 p.m. on September 25, reports the "Manila Bulletin." The men who were killed were in the tienda together with two other persons, who were injured, and were crushed under the auto. All occupants of the car, seven in number, were injured. Gregorio Navarro, Ambrosio Jimenez and Mateo Sabino, all of Bacoor, were killed. The first two mentioned received broken ribs and internal injuries that resulted in almost immediate death. Sabino died about 10 p.m. at the Philippine General Hospital, where he was rushed for medical treatment.

Players in Car.
With the exception of Mr. Johnson, and Frederick Gaynor, five-year old son of George A. Gaynor, of Cavite, the occupants of the car, were members of the All-American Cavite baseball team, which played a series of two games in Manila Sunday.

Mr. Johnson was taking the players home when the accident occurred.

The injured persons are George A. Gaynor, Claude A. Hamm, William H. Ashbey, Arthur J. Provost and Roy M. Patrick, of the Cavite navy yard; Frederick Gaynor, son of George Gaynor; Mr. Johnson; Augustin Miranda, and Clemente Malawig, of Bacoor.

Mr. Johnson and Mr. Gaynor are the most seriously injured according to physicians in charge at the Canacao Naval Hospital. Both of Mr. Johnson's legs were broken. Both bones in the left leg were fractured. Mr. Gaynor received a deep laceration in the right leg.

Tienda Owner Hurt.

Augustin Miranda, owner of the wrecked tienda at Bacoor, suffered a dislocation of the right arm, while Clemente Malawig sustained a lacerated right arm. Both are being treated in their homes at Bacoor.

William Ashbey, the Cavite baseball team's star pitcher, escaped with only a slight cut on his face. He was released from the hospital after treatment. Mr. Provost sustained several cuts about the face and hands, while Mr. Patrick suffered three broken left ribs. Frederick Gaynor, the youngest member of the party, was only slightly injured. He escaped with a minor abdominal bruise.

Car Attacked.

An investigation of the accident conducted on September 26 by the authorities at Cavite revealed that when entering the village of Bacoor, Mr. Johnson's automobile, in making its way through a parade crowd, struck a small boy, knocking him down. The boy escaped uninjured, according to reports at Bacoor, but a large crowd which had gathered around the scene, became enraged and attacked the occupants of the car. The baseball players and their driver were greeted with a fusillade of rocks, stones and pieces of iron, and a policeman fired two shots.

To escape the enraged mob, Mr. Johnson turned off the lights of his automobile and hurried on through the village in the direction of Cavite. Upon approaching the Bacoor bridge, which lies on the outskirts of the village, the car came to a sharp turn in the road, almost a right-angle turn. Mr. Johnson attempted to make it. The car skidded rolled down an incline that banks the curve and demolished the Miranda tienda.

Tree Jack-Knifed.

When the automobile completed its crash, it was lying on its side, with its frame jack-knifed around the trunk of a tree.

The crowd, which had given chase to the Johnson car upon its entrance into Bacoor, halted when they saw the crash and kept at a distance. The driver of a passing car, whose name could not be learned, stopped at the wreck, summoned the crowd of Filipinos to his assistance, picked up the injured members of the baseball team and Mr. Johnson, and rushed them to Canacao Hospital.

Investigation Ordered.

The men occupying the tienda were attended by relatives. Mateo Sabino was rushed to the Philippine General Hospital but died shortly after his arrival. Gregorio Navarro and Ambrosio Jimenez died on the scene of the accident.

An investigation of the accident has been ordered by Rear Admiral Summer E. W. Kittella, commandant of the navy yard. The navy yard authorities have not yet placed any blame on anyone. A complaint has been filed by the Bacoor officials with the Cavite authorities.

Interest taken by American railway officials in the advance of Canadian locomotive construction is emphasised by the fact that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company have been asked to send their latest passenger engine to Baltimore to be placed on exhibition at the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Centenary Exhibition and Regatta, being held from September 24 to October 8, at President's Park, Baltimore. It is expected that the engine will be on display for a period of about a month.

Canadian Pacific officials have sent word to Baltimore that they will be represented there by the latest type of their "2800" class passenger locomotives. The complete design of their engine is one of its striking features. In construction the weight was kept to a minimum, even though an increase of 50 pounds per square inch was attained, bringing the boiler pressure developed up to 280 pounds.

The Baltimore Centenary Exhibition, is expected to be the most complete outdoor and indoor exhibition of transportation ever collected, including the earliest and latest types of locomotive from the North American as well as the European Continents and the British Isles.

A PRETENDER.

CASTLE IN SPAIN
TALE.

Angel L. de Varanda, charged by Antonio Vives with having defrauded him of P.625 by pretending to be heir to the fortune of a nobleman in Antorcha, Spain, was acquitted of estafa by Judge Imperial in Manila, reports the local "Times."

The court based his findings on the utter improbability of a person of Sr. Vives' evident experience possessing the credulity necessary to believe the obviously fanciful tale invented by the Varanda, who is a sickly, unprepossessing young man in his early twenties.

De Varanda, it is claimed, spoke convincingly of a fortune which he was to inherit, and which varied, according to his statement, from 3,000,000 to 25,000,000 pounds sterling. His promises to the Vives family included a tour of the world on one or both of his newly-purchased steamers, Saturno, and Neptune.

"The manifestations made by the accused to the offended person and his wife," the court humorously remarked in handing down his decision, "were based on facts which were not only fantastic but obviously fabled, and a mere glance should have been sufficient to convince anyone of their being nothing but a 'Tartar's Tale.'"

In dismissing the estafa complaint against de Varanda the court reserved to Sr. Vives the right to file a civil action in the premises.

MALAYAN FOREST FOLK.

THE "LANGUAGE" OF APES.

In the Zoology section of the British Association, on Sept. 5, Mr. H. N. Ridley, who was in charge of the Singapore Botanic Gardens for 15 years and had established in them a collection of local wild animals, gave a fascinating account of some of the observations he had made.

He had kept the large orang-utan alive for many years, and found it to be intelligent and docile when young, but apt to be sullen and dangerous as it approached maturity. Another anthropoid ape, the agile gibbon, was remarkable, like all the gibbons, for its extremely loud voice, which, however, could be modulated until it could almost be described as singing.

Mr. Ridley said: "They are famous for their song at sunrise, and the marvellous thing is that the notes they utter run up and down the scale perfectly. To hear them singing in unison across a valley is a weird experience."

Many of the smaller monkeys, he continued, uttered a range of sounds that seemed to convey states of mind and to be a rudimentary kind of language. There were warning cries, as at the presence of snakes, calls to the young, scolding, chattering, sex calls, and fighting challenges.

"The language of monkeys can be very expressive indeed," said Mr. Ridley. "They make a noise like 'kree' which the natives say means 'warn a man,' but they make quite a different cry to represent 'I see a tiger,' and in the forest camps this cry of warning wakens you like an alarm clock. In a tropical zoo each male monkey has a harem of seven wives. If we put a female monkey into a cage of mixed monkeys it is the signal for an attack on her by all members of her sex, just as the males would be similarly hostile if one of their sex were introduced. But let the intruding male win the battle and he becomes king automatically. He has the pick of the harem and is permitted to take first choice of all food. The result is that they overeat, and I had two king monkeys die from this cause. When the king becomes old there is a fierce fight with the younger monkeys, in which the king is usually slain."

Tigers, if they were to be kept in good health, appeared to require meals of fresh blood from time to time, probably because of the salts contained in it. They would eat stale carrion or return to a large prey for many days after the kill, but that did not satisfy all their physiological requirements, and hence from time to time they made ferocious attacks on cattle or on human beings.

The Malay tapir when seen in a museum or in a zoo, either in the adult or the immature state, was a very conspicuously coloured animal. In nature, however, the colour-pattern was an effective camouflage. The adult had a great saddle-shaped block of whitish-grey breaking up the dark colour of the rest of the body. When the animal lay on the dry bed of a stream, one of their favourite haunts, the body seemed to be nothing but a rounded limestone boulder. The young were vividly striped and, when they were standing or crouching in a reed-bed, they blended completely with the background. Tapirs, like rhinoceroses and other large ungulates, lived largely on the fallen fruits of trees and on shoots and foliage, and undoubtedly played an important part in the dispersal of the seeds of trees, as these passed through their bodies not only unharmed, but with the early stages of germination favoured.

VEIL FALLS.

MYSTERIES OF OLD TURKISH REGIME.

Veil upon veil has fallen in the new Turkey, disclosing mysteries of the old regime.

Now the heaviest and most mysterious veil of all is to be drawn aside—the massive bronze door which for almost 400 years has shut the Imperial Harem of the Seraglio Palace from the world.

Within the labyrinth behind that door workmen are busy with scaffolding and plaster to prepare for the opening of the harem as a museum within several months. The harem is a maze of tiny rooms built into each other like a nest of Chinese boxes and connected by a witchery of shadowy corridors and little stairways which wander up and down haphazardly. The subdued laughter and the whispered fears of thousands of women echoed in the past through the hundred or more rooms of the harem, through the inner courtyard and the high-walled roof garden, still ornamental with roses and fountains, where the imprisoned ladies could see the sky.

The rooms are dark, lighted only by tiny windows of stained glass barred on the outside and covered with lattices, or by the typical Moslem honey-comb nest of holes in the roof. Thus dim light filters on polychrome carved woodwork in the ceilings, tiles in the walls and soft old rugs on the floors.

Much of the old furniture remains: wide, low divans covered with tattered brocades, chairs of ivory and of precious wood inlaid with mother-of-pearl, dim mirrors in frames of golden filigree. Punctured walls open disclosing hundreds of closets, in one of which there is still a mound of mattresses formerly used to make a royal bed under one of the carved many coloured canopies which are scattered throughout the harem.

Outside the bedchamber of Sultan Ahmed III, "the sultan loving monarch," there is set in the wall a slender column of antique verde which turns in its socket with a grinding sound. It was used by the eunuchs to warn His Majesty of the approach of any interloper.

In all the bedrooms are marble fountains and troughs for washing the feet. In the apartment of the little princes even the window sills are made into marble troughs with golden faucets at each end. Imposing are the imperial baths, a series of snowy white rooms opening into each other through doors padded with red felt.

There are two kinds of baths. One consists of a fountain and a trough behind a golden grille with a locked gate where the sultanas bathed in Moslem style, sitting on stools while slaves poured water over them from buckets of gold. The other is a huge marble tub outside the grille into which Christian women of the harem descended to bathe in European style.

FRENCH BUILDING SLUMP.

"Formidable" unemployment in France within a year is foreseen by President Largier of the National Chamber of Real Estate Agents.

Largier says over-taxation is throttling building. He says building has dropped off about a third and that all industry will soon show the effects of this. He calls upon the government to act immediately to avoid a "social and financial peril."

A tax of 25 per cent. is levied on real estate transfers. This, he says, has proved to be a fatal mistake. He shows that the government is receiving less and less revenues from this tax.

THE TINOS.

OLD WHITE RACE IN THE ORIENT.

Delegates at a recent scientific congress in Tokyo evidenced considerable interest in the origin of a white race now living in Japan, where it seems to have preceded the present yellow race.

Isolated now on the islands of Hokkaido, the race, called Tinios, still have a manner of living and a language which show them to be descendants of primitive white men.

The Tino is no taller than the Japanese, but is heavier. His skin is white, though swarthy and his hair is thick and wavy. The eyes do not have the Mongol slant. Some scientists believe them to have come originally from Europe, others associate them with the Polynesians.

ILLITERACY.

SEEMS TO INCREASE IN FRANCE.

Illiteracy seems to be increasing in France. Educators propose to do something about it.

One-sixth of the French population, statistics show, are classed as illiterate, which means here that they can not read and write. There are three and one-half per cent. who do not even know the letters of the alphabet. This is said to be seven times the proportion in Germany and 35 times the percentage in Sweden.

Absence of children from school has increased until more than one-ninth fail to attend classes.

A number of congresses and organizations are urging some arrangement for supplementary instruction of young people who left school to help earn the family living. They hope, later, also to improve the general system of education.

FRENCH CULTURE.

LIKED BY SOUTH AMERICAN VISITORS.

Americans from the United States sometimes wonder why Paris pays so much attention to South Americans when the United States would seem to be more attractive in a business way.

"Le Journal," as patron of a big South American opera recently, explained that if the French language and French culture are to hold their places in the world South America will be a big factor. Wealthy South Americans probably are as numerous as North Americans in Paris. They regard Paris as the world's intellectual and political capital, says "Le Journal," while this is not true of Anglo-Saxons. Therefore, France's interest, it is argued, is to influence the 20,000,000 people of South America, whose Latin temperament the French understand.

TO SEE COOLIDGE.

PHILIPPINES' SENATOR'S
PERSONAL MISSION.

The "Manila Bulletin" of September 24 reports:—
Manuel Quezon, President of the Senate, spent more than an hour at Malacanang yesterday afternoon in conference with Acting Governor General Gilmore. The purpose of the conference could not be ascertained.

Hon. Manuel L. Quezon, President of the Senate, will take the first available steamer to the United States.

Mr. Quezon will constitute a one-man mission to confer with President Coolidge on the selection of a new Governor-General. His trip is in response to an invitation alleged to have been extended to him by the President.

The "invitation" was revealed by Pedro Guevara, Philippine resident commissioner in Washington, after a recent interview with Mr. Coolidge, in the course of which Mr. Guevara was asked by Mr. Quezon if he would be willing to receive Philippine leaders.

Mr. Coolidge, according to Mr. Guevara, intimated that he was always glad to see Philippine leaders. Acting on this advice, Mr. Quezon himself announced last night that he was off for Washington as soon as transportation could be arranged.

Caucus Held.

The decision to send Mr. Quezon to Washington was reached last night at a secret meeting of majority members of the legislature who were informed officially by Mr. Quezon of Resident Commissioner Pedro Guevara's meeting with President Coolidge and of the latter's announcement of his willingness to receive Philippine leaders in a conference. Earlier in the day, however, Mr. Quezon had a conference with Senator Sergio Osmeña and Speaker Manuel Roxas in his house in Pasay, where the question of his going to Washington is understood to have been settled.

After the majority caucus last night Mr. Quezon issued the following press statement:—

"At a meeting of the majority members of the Philippine legislature, Senate President Quezon informed his colleagues of the conference. Resident Commissioner Pedro Guevara had with President Coolidge in which the President manifested his willingness to meet with Philippine leaders. Mr. Quezon also announced that he would inform the minority members as soon as a date could be agreed for a meeting with them. The majority members of the legislature, received the news from Washington with satisfaction and expressed their desire that Senate President Quezon leave for the United States at the earliest possible time. Senator Sergio Osmeña will act as resident pro tempore of the senate in Mr. Quezon's absence."

Won't Say How Long.

Mr. Quezon refused to discuss what he intended to take up with the President, telling newspapermen that he was not prepared to say more than appeared in his press statement. How long he will remain in the United States, he would not say.

Expenses of the mission will be borne from the discretionary funds of the senate, P50,000 being available for the purpose.

GERMAN NOBLEMEN.

STILL DRAW ANNUITIES
FROM STATE.

Sixteen princes, dukes and counts of the old German empire have drawn from the German Republic coffers in the last three years the sum of 2,239,528 gold marks, or about $560,000, according to a statement issued by the Prussian Finance Ministry in reply to a question in the Diet.

These payments, the statement explains, take the place of annuities granted after the revolution to former heads of petty German states. They were payable in paper marks. The sum total, 1,831,570 marks, amounted in the inflation year 1923 to the merest fraction of one American cent.

Nothing apparently was forgotten or neglected by the noble claimants in demanding compensation for the loss of old privileges many of them dating from the middle ages. The fourth of six sectional heads under which the annuities were detailed, gives particulars of compensations for the loss of postal privileges, for the ownership of serfs and even for the rights to collect rags and bones.

SUMMER QUEEN.

CHOSEN BY GERMAN
JUDGES.

This year's choice of the German summer queen involved much careful consideration and repeated reconsideration.

For hours hundreds of competing aspirants for regal honours were obliged to file again and again before the stern appraising judges in Luna Park—the Coney Island of Berlin. It was not until 10 o'clock at night that the jury had sifted the 25 most promising maidens from all this wealth of beauty in bathing costumes.

At the final public ballot the crown was accorded by a large majority to an 18-year old German mannequin, Margaret Kraemer. The regal honours conferred on her also comprised a crisp 1,000 mark bill, a large bouquet of roses and the manifest joy of being filmed on the spot innumerable times.

Nina Rilewsky, a 20-year old Russian girl, carried off the second prize.

SUIT AGAINST CONVENT.

GIRLS TO REMAIN WITH GUARDIANS.

The petition of Juanita Mapago, at present temporarily residing at 1803 Calle Felix Huertas, Santa Cruz, for a writ of Habeas Corpus, asking that the court order the American Guardian Association and the Good Shepherd Convent to deliver to her Clara Brown and Rufina Brown, her daughters, on the ground they had reached their majority, was denied in Manila by Judge Anacleto Diaz, of the sixth branch of the court of first instance.

Judge Diaz dismissed the petition on the ground the mother apparently is unable to support her children.

The petition was dismissed also on the ground Clara, who is more than 21, has told the court she does not want to live with her mother, and Rufina has not reached her majority.

THE WAY THE WORLD WAGS.

Woman Burnt to Death.

Miss Elizabeth Parsons (35) was found fatally burned in her bungalow at Burwardsley, Tattenhall, near Chester. A temporary postman, Leslie Harding, who is Miss Parsons' nephew, noticed smoke coming from the bungalow roof. He smashed a window and saw Miss Parsons lying dead on the bed.

Over 150 deaths are reported in Galician floods.

Membership of Automobile Association is now over 350,000.

Mrs. Amelia Bingham (58), the American actress, has died.

John Fuger (19), of Strood, was drowned while bathing near Rochester bridge.

An imitation of a fleeing hare, made of rubber, and inflated before each event, is used on Southend's new greyhound racing track.

New Art Gallery.

In order to complete the modern foreign gallery which was opened by the King at Millbank last year, Sir Joseph Duxen has made a further offer to build an additional gallery for modern foreign sculpture. His offer has been accepted, and the new building will shortly be erected on the vacant site reserved behind the present galleries.

When driving home to Dean Farm, West Down, Devon, Cyril Chugg (26) was struck by lightning and killed. The pony continued the journey, and Chugg's body was found lying in the cart.

Benoist, driving a French Delage car, won the Grand Prix of Europe on the track at Monza, Italy. Morandi, with an Italian O.M. car, was second; Kreis, with the American Miller car, was third; and Minola, with an Italian O.M., fourth.

Snake in a Motor-Car.

On arriving at Carnarvon during a tour of North Wales, a Manchester motorist was astonished to discover that a snake, over 3 feet long, had coiled itself under the seat of the car. Both driver and passenger were greatly alarmed, but a member of the town council came to the rescue and, whipping the reptile from its hiding place, killed it.

Found unconscious in a Rotherhithe-Street, Mr. John Corrigan, an engineer, of Evelyn-Street, Deptford, died in Bermondsey Hospital. It was evident that the man had been assaulted and robbed, and Scotland Yard officers are endeavouring to trace the thieves. When he was found, Corrigan had a severe wound on the head, and, although he was known to have received £40 from his employers shortly before, there was no money on him and his pockets were turned inside out.

Two wedding receptions were being held in a fashionable hotel in London at the same hour. Since the guests kept getting into the wrong receptions, the two affairs were merged. A late guest, refusing a glass of champagne, said: "I know when I've had enough; I've seen two brides already."

Not far from Hyde Park Corner, London, the Japanese Lillium speciosum has displaced a remarkable display of the white trumpet or "gun" lily, as the Japanese call it. longiflorum, from the inordinately length of the tube. Tiger lilies, also from Japan, are pushing up their heads among the beds of rhododendrons near the Row, and if the weather relents should soon be in brilliant flower. This happy use of Japanese lilies in the heart of London is an example, says "The Times," of what can be done when courage, imagination, and sound knowledge are allied to good staff work.

Baronet Rescued.

While sailing on the lake on his estate at Glaslough, County Monaghan, Sir John Leslie, Bt., and two companions, Captain Vivyan Holland and Mr. Jackson Palmer, were capsized and in danger of drowning. Miss Anita Leslie, granddaughter of Sir John Leslie, put out in a rowing boat to the rescue and the three men were brought safely to shore. They were much exhausted, but soon recovered.

Cadets' Cruise.

Cadets of the Scarborough Sea Training School returned on September 8 from an interesting and instructive cruise in the schooner "Maise Graham." Under the command of the principal of the school, the cadets left Scarborough on July 28, and since then have covered nearly 1,250 miles, visiting Cowes, Calais, Brussels, Antwerp, Flushing, and other ports. Even in the worst of weather, it is stated, the boys worked well, and wherever they went they received a cordial welcome.

$500 Dole Fraud.

"I found it easy. I have drawn two lots of money at one Exchange on the same day. I started with one book at first and it was money for nothing, so I carried on with others. I have had well over $500." This statement is alleged to have been made by Albert Gorham (47), clerk, who, at Greenwich, was sent for trial for alleged unemployment relief frauds. Detective-Sergeant Horrell said in Gorman's locker in an L.C.C. lodging house he found 11 unemployment books and several diaries containing the names of men, with particulars of wives and children.

When Princes of the Blood Royal visit their Dominions Overseas they have to go through a great number of ceremonies, receptions and functions which in the aggregate furnish a considerable amount of hard work which makes of their trip anything but a vacation time. When, further, they are accompanied by the Prime Minister of the Old Country, although the latter may relieve them somewhat in the matter of speeches, the tour becomes all the more arduous by reason of its greater significance. Accordingly, there is all the more cause to make their few private hours as comfortable as possible and this has been amply looked after in the Canadian Pacific Royal Train that conveyed the distinguished guests across the Dominion. Grouped on the observation end of the private car, Mount Stephen that was assigned to the use of the Royal guests were the personnel of the attendants and others whose duty it was to make the Princes and the Premier forget their hard work in the lap of luxury. They were all picked men who have been out at one time or another with celebrities travelling C.P.R. across Canada. The chefs were men of European reputation who are acknowledged experts in their line. They accompanied the Prince of Wales on his previous visits to Canada and were known to His Royal Highness. Standing on the car from left to right they are: G. Hicks, W. Zoppl, H. T. Jolley, T. E. Evans, and J. Bassett. Lower left to right: J. B. Ford, J. Toole, S. Ferraris, E. McKeay, L. Charney, P. Hugginson, and G. Highway.

SHOT TO DEATH.

Gruesome Sight In A Street.

A REBEL'S END.

Ex-President's Brother In Bitter Fight.

Nogales, Yesterday.
The gruesome spectacle of the dead body of Alfonso Dela Huerta, brother of the ex-President, publicly exposed in the street marks the end of a chequered career full of hairbreadth escapes from foes. He recently crossed the frontier but was kidnapped, taken back and condemned to be shot, but escaped when the officer in charge of the firing party recognised him as a former superior officer and joined him instead of giving the order to fire.

A band of 100 Federals was subsequently sent out to hunt Dela Huerta, who with a companion, General Medina, gave them a fight. Riddled with bullets the bodies were brought back.

Los Angeles, Yesterday.
The report of the execution of Gomez is disbelieved by the latter's wife, who remarked "you may depend upon it that Gomez is very much alive."

NATIONAL DAY.

ANNIVERSARY OF CHINESE REVOLUTION.

HONG KONG OBSERVANCES.

Monday is China's National Day—the 16th anniversary of the outbreak of the Revolution which paved the way to the Republic.
Chinese in Hong Kong will be able to take advantage of the statute bank holiday on Monday. Elsewhere in China the day is observed regularly as a public holiday.

As the Chinese Maritime Customs will be closed, the river boats will not work cargo. The Chinese Seamen's Union in Canton has asked the compradore departments of river steamboats for contributions towards their celebrations.

None in Peking?

Observances in Canton will be under Government organisation. News from the North is that the annual ceremonies at Peking, when the Ministers of the Powers call on the chief executive, are to be put off owing to the outbreak of war between the government and Shanai province.

Schools, the Hong Kong Chinese General Chamber of Commerce, and other local institutions are to take part in private or semi-private observations on Monday.

SIR PAUL CHATER.

STATUE PROPOSAL UNDER CONSIDERATION.

SUGGESTED SITES.

The proposal to erect a memorial statue to Sir Paul Chater has been under consideration for some considerable time and it is learnt that the matter is in the hands of a Committee composed of prominent European and Chinese residents, the Chairman being the Hon. Mr. D. G. M. Bernard.

Various sites have been suggested, one proposed situation being Statue Square between the Supreme Court and Prince's Building facing the City Hall and on the opposite grass plot to the statue of Sir Thomas Jackson. Another suggestion is that the statue should be situated further down towards the Praya and should face Prince's Building where most of Sir Paul Chater's work was done. Other sites are also under consideration.

The matter, it is understood, has been referred to the Government for consideration of the site question.

A fund for public subscription will be opened at a later date.

FAIR TO SHOWERY.

The meteorological information issued from the Observatory this morning is as follows:

CANTON AUTONOMY.

Li Takes Over Political Department.

NANKING IGNORED.

Other Army Commanders Want To Return.

As part of the scheme of general reorganisation in the Canton Government, the central political department has now been taken over by military headquarters of General Li Chai-sum, the commander-in-chief.

General Chang Fah-hui (who commands the Ironsides), has issued a circular telegram in support of practical autonomy for Kwangtung province. The new Nationalist Government at Nanking (appointed by the delegates in extraordinary conference) is disacknowledged. Support is promised for the fourth plenary session of the Central Executive Committee of the Kuomintang, which should have been held at Nanking but was called off at the last moment.

Hints have been thrown out that Canton may yet have to provide for a good many old campaigners, other than the Ironsides.

$1,000,000 Request.

General Li Tsung-jen (7th Army) and General Pei Chung-hsi, who are both reckoned as on the Nanking side of the Nationalist Party, are reported to have asked General Li Chai-sum of Canton for $1,000,000 with which they can bring their respective armies back to Kwangtung.

Li Chai-sum (and his supporter, the chief of the Ironsides), General Wong Shiu-hung of Kwangsi, Li Tsung-jen, and Pei Chung-hsi are natives of Kwangsi. There has been talk of a "new Kwangsi" to control the south but well informed opinion in Canton does not think that Li Chai-sum will welcome the return of any troops from Nanking.

Financial Stringency.

Nominated by General Chang Fah-hui, who is now taking an active part in the Canton Government, a new Finance Minister is to assume office shortly.

Financial stringency is again apparent in Canton business circles. In connection with trade it is interesting to note that a commercial organisation composed of delegates from both Kwangtung and Kwangsi has been proposed, the object being to assist merchants.

Police Propaganda.

Canton's Police Commissioner is devoting much attention to the value of propaganda. Rules have been issued for the establishment of machinery in the department whereby the Police will undertake Government propaganda in minute detail. Care will also be taken of non-Government propaganda and publications, so that "reactionary" movements can be checked.

A Canton brigade commander has been ordered to lead 2,000 men from Swatow northwards to the provincial boundary with Fukien to harass the Communist army which is retiring thither under General Ho Lung.

Reinforcements for Swatow and the Han River area have arrived at Swatow in the shape of a division transferred from the East River.

JAPANESE DISASTER.

NAVAL COURT ISSUES FINDING.

Tokyo, Yesterday.

Concerning the naval disaster on the night of August 24 last, Admiral Takarabe, chief of the naval enquiry committee, states that investigation proved no defect in the method of fighting and no degeneration in the fighting spirit of the participants. The disaster is considered virtually as unavoidable, as more than 20 warships were steaming at full speed with lights out at the time of the disaster.

GERMAN LOANS.

Dispute Over Foreign Borrowings.

THREAT TO RESIGN.

Negotiations With American Groups Proceeding.

Berlin, Yesterday.
A clash has occurred over the respective policies of Herr Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, who insists on checking the flow of capital to Germany, and Herr Curtius, Minister of Economics, who favours borrowing abroad for productive purposes.

Herr Curtius is reported to have threatened to resign if Herr Schacht's viewpoint prevails.

In the meantime the Commerz Privat Bank is negotiating with an American financial group for a long term twenty-five million dollar loan.

Cabinet Approves.

The Cabinet to-day unanimously decided that long term loans from abroad were essential and proposed to appoint a special body to consider applicants and to raise such loans.—Reuter.

SIGNING CHITS.

OWNER BROUGHT INTO COURT.

PERSUADED TO SIGN.

Claiming that the No. 1 Boy had persuaded him to sign chits after he had been paying cash for some time, Frank W. White disputed the action brought by the 'Exchange Buffet in the British Supreme Court, Shanghai, before His Honour Judge Peter Grain. Neither the plaintiff nor the defendant was represented by counsel.

The claim was for goods sold to the amount of $94.70 by the plaintiff to the defendant in substitution of which chits signed by the defendant were produced in Court.

A Chinese accountant represented the plaintiff and gave evidence to the effect that the plaintiff had obtained goods in the nature of wine, spirits and liquors from the 'Exchange Buffet and in spite of demands for payment the amount named in the summons was still outstanding. A letter had been written to the defendant by Cameron Potter and Co. and the defendant stated that he would pay half of the amount in three weeks.

The defendant, addressing His Honour, stated that the witness had nothing to do with the plaintiff. He said that the summons and claim was for money owing during the months of June and July and the witness was claiming for the months of June, July and August.

No Credit Allowed.
Defendant (to witness): What are these chits for?
Witness: For goods supplied.

Defendant: What were the goods supplied: wines, spirits and liquors?
Witness: Yes.

Defendant: Isn't there a sign in the 'Exchange Buffet stating that no credit is allowed?
Witness: Yes.

Defendant: Isn't there also a sign saying that no gratuities are to be given to the boys?
Witness: I don't know.

Defendant: Isn't there a sign stating that no cumsins is to be given to the boys?
Witness: No.

In answer to further questions the witness stated that he represented the plaintiff and that other members of the firm Messrs. Frewin and Isaacs told him to come to Court.

Admits Chits.
The defendant then elected to give evidence and said that, on September 2 he met Mr. Frewin and requested that a shroff be sent around to collect some of the money owing. He had never refused to pay the amount and did not know why he was brought to Court. He used to pay cash at the 'Exchange Buffet but the No. 1 Boy persuaded him to sign chits saying "You belong to right, Mr. White." For the money he owed he had received wines, spirits and liquors and not goods.

The defendant was then shown the chits and said "They seem to be mine."

His Honour said that the witness for the plaintiff had established his right to represent the plaintiff by the possession of the chits and his statements in Court. The claim was for goods sold during the months of June and July and not for the months of August and September and the witness had not produced any evidence to show that he was the owner of the goods.
